

You're two friends at a coffee shop.

- A realizes they forgot their wallet.
- B pays for A's coffee and pastry.

You're two strangers on a plane.

- A struggles to lift their heavy luggage onto the rack.
- B helps them.

You're coworkers at a grocery store.

- A has a family emergency and needs to miss their next shift.
- B overhears and offers to cover the shift.

You're two friends who live far away.

- A is driving past B's city on a road trip when their car breaks down. They call B and ask for help.
- B drives an hour to pick up A and lets A stay the night while someone fixes the car.

You're neighbors.

- A and their family are going out of town for the weekend to a hotel that doesn't allow pets, but A has a dog.
- B agrees to feed and walk the dog two times a day.

You're classmates who talk occasionally.

- A gets sick and can't come to class.
- B makes a copy of their notes and brings the notes and some soup to A on their way home from school.

You're strangers caught in a rainstorm.

- A realizes they have no coat or umbrella and must walk 10 minutes to the subway.
- B notices that A looks upset and gives A their umbrella. B has a raincoat.
